INDICTMENT

The Grand Jury charges that:

I. RELEVANT PERSONS AND ENTITIES

A. Fair Financial Services

1. Fair Financial Company was a financial services business operating in Northeast Ohio under the name Fair Financial Services ("Fair"). Fair's headquarters were in Akron, Ohio, but it maintained offices in several locations in Ohio, including but not limited to Canton, Medina, Wooster, Cuyahoga Falls, Wadsworth, Ashland, and Millersburg. Fair had operated in Ohio since 1934.

2. In or about 2002, defendants TIMOTHY S. DURHAM and JAMES F. COCHRAN purchased Fair through a holding company they owned and controlled called Fair Holdings, Inc. ("FHI").

3. When DURHAM and COCHRAN purchased Fair, its primary business was consumer financing. Fair provided financing to businesses by purchasing their customer accounts receivables (or "finance receivables") at a reduced rate. Fair provided businesses with cash that they could use earlier than if they waited to collect the finance receivables themselves, and in return, Fair kept the difference between what it paid the businesses for their finance receivables and what it collected on them.

4. Fair raised the money it needed to buy finance receivables by selling "investment certificates" to investors. Investors who purchased certificates were entitled to regular interest payments for a set period, usually from 6 to 24 months. At the end of the period, investors were entitled to repayment of the principal investment in a single lump sum (a "redemption"), which would retire the certificate.

5. Fair marketed and sold the investment certificates through its branch offices. The investment certificates were securities pursuant to 15 U.S.C. § 78c(a)(10).

6. Fair was required to register the investment certificates with the State of Ohio Division of Securities ("Division of Securities"). In order to register the certificates, Fair was required to submit to the Division of Securities financial information about Fair and a proposed "Offering Circular." The Offering Circular was required to contain truthful and accurate disclosures about Fair, including (a) risk factors to investors who purchased investment certificates, (b) a description of its business and financial condition, (c) its balance sheet, and (d) its income statement, so that the Division of Securities could make informed decisions in evaluating Fair's proposed sale of investment certificates, and so that investors could rely on the Offering Circular to make informed decisions about whether to buy Fair's investment certificates.

7. Fair could only register a specific amount of investment certificates. Once Fair sold the registered amount, Fair was required to submit new registration documents and an Offering Circular to the Division of Securities to sell additional investment certificates.

8. Between 2002 and November 2009, Fair raised approximately $200 million from investors through the sale of investment certificates; submitted at least five Offering Circulars to the Division of Securities, including in April 2007, July 2008, January 2009, October 2009, and November 2009; and distributed at least three Offering Circulars to investors, including those dated April 2007, July 2008, and January 2009.

B. The Defendants and the Companies They Owned or Controlled

9. From the time defendants DURHAM and COCHRAN purchased Fair in 2002 through November 2009, DURHAM was the Chief Executive Officer, a member of the board of directors, and responsible for managing all of Fair's financial affairs, including Fair's financial reporting obligations to the Division of Securities and to its investors.

10. From the time defendants DURHAM and COCHRAN purchased Fair in 2002 through November 2009, COCHRAN was the Chairman of the Board and responsible for Fair's operations and policies.

11. From shortly after DURHAM and COCHRAN purchased Fair in 2002 through November 2009, defendant RICK D. SNOW, a Certified Public Accountant, was the Chief Financial Officer ("CFO") of Fair. As CFO, SNOW was responsible for maintaining Fair's books and records. SNOW regularly consulted with DURHAM and COCHRAN about the financial status of Fair, including Fair's revenue and loss records, investment decisions, and the reporting of financial information to the Division of Securities and to investors. SNOW maintained his principal business operations in Indianapolis, Indiana.

12. DURHAM and COCHRAN controlled Fair and FHI through another holding company called DC Investments, LLC ("DCI"). FHI and DCI maintained their principal business operations in Indianapolis, Indiana. DCI was primarily a holding company for various businesses that DURHAM and COCHRAN owned or controlled.

13. DURHAM was also an owner of Obsidian Enterprises, Inc. ("Obsidian"). Obsidian maintained its principal place of business in Indianapolis, Indiana. Obsidian was also primarily a holding company for various businesses that DURHAM owned or controlled. SNOW was Obsidian's CFO and responsible for maintaining Obsidian's books and records.

C. The Victims

14. Fair sold investment certificates to individual investors living in the state of Ohio.

II. THE SCHEME TO DEFRAUD

A. Overview of the Scheme

15. Between approximately February 2005, the exact date being unknown to the Grand Jury, through the end of November 2009, DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW, and others, devised, intended to devise, and executed a scheme to defraud investors:

16. After DURHAM and COCHRAN acquired Fair, they changed the manner in which Fair operated and used its funds. Rather than using the funds that Fair raised from investors primarily for the purpose of purchasing finance receivables, DURHAM and COCHRAN caused Fair to extend loans to themselves, to their associates, and to the businesses they owned or controlled, which caused a steady and substantial deterioration in Fair's financial condition. DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW then deceived and defrauded investors by making and causing others to make false and misleading statements about Fair's financial condition and about the manner in which they were using Fair investor money.

B. Purpose of the Scheme

17. The purpose of the scheme was to (a) enrich DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW; (b) solicit and obtain millions of dollars of investors' funds through false and misleading pretenses, representations and promises; and (c) conceal from the investing public Fair's true financial condition and the manner in which they were using Fair investor money.

C. The Loans from Fair to DURHAM, COCHRAN, and the Businesses They Owned or Controlled

18. Shortly after purchasing Fair, DURHAM and COCHRAN began to alter Fair's business. Instead of using the majority of the money that Fair raised from investors through the sale of investment certificates for Fair's consumer financing business, DURHAM and COCHRAN began using investor money to make loans to themselves, to their family, friends, and acquaintances, and to businesses they owned or controlled.

19. DURHAM and COCHRAN wired Fair investor money to themselves, to their family, friends, and acquaintances, and to the companies that they owned or controlled through multiple entities connected by lines of credit, including through FHI, Obsidian, and DCI. Because the ultimate entities that received loans of Fair investor money did not have a direct business relationship with Fair, information about those entities and the loans that they received was kept hidden from investors.

20. Obsidian and DCI, and the businesses that DURHAM and COCHRAN owned or controlled through Obsidian and DCI, were among the primary beneficiaries of the loans. DURHAM and COCHRAN loaned money through Obsidian and DCI to a variety of struggling businesses and start-up ventures, including a car magazine, restaurants, a surgery center, trailer manufacturers, internet companies, a race car team, a replica vintage car manufacturer, a rubber reclaiming plant, and a luxury bus leasing business. After receiving loans from Fair, many of these businesses failed and were never able to repay the money they borrowed, while others, with the benefit of continued loans from Fair, struggled as unprofitable entities for years.

21. In addition to the loans that they made through DCI to their struggling businesses and to their family, friends, and acquaintances, DURHAM and COCHRAN took loans of Fair investor money for themselves through lines of credit with DCI. DURHAM and COCHRAN used a significant portion of the proceeds of these loans to maintain their lifestyles and to pay for personal expenses.

22. The loans that DURHAM and COCHRAN made to businesses that later failed and were never repaid, and the regular infusions of Fair investor money used to support DURHAM and COCHRAN's lifestyles, personal expenses, and the businesses they owned or controlled, caused Fair's financial condition to steadily and substantially deteriorate.

D. Firing Fair's Accountants and Using Unaudited Financial Statements

23. From in or about February 2005 through in or about June 2005, Fair's accountants ("Accounting Firm A") told DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW that the lack of repayment on the loans that they had made with Fair investor money, the continued extensions of loan maturity dates, the frequent alteration of loan terms, and the deteriorating condition of the businesses that received loans indicated that many of the loans (a) were not arm's length transactions, (b) were impaired, and (c) had insufficient collateral.

24. In or about June 2005, after DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW failed to convince Accounting Firm A that they had properly accounted for the loans they had made with Fair investor money, DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW terminated Accounting Firm A and hired a second set of accountants ("Accounting Firm B").

25. From in or about June 2005 through August 2006, Accounting Firm B told DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW that because it was doubtful that Fair could collect on many of the loans that they had made with Fair investor money and because interest payments on those loans had rarely being made, they would need to be supported by collateral. While Accounting Firm B initially found that DURHAM had sufficient collateral consisting of his own stock and other personal property to support the non-performing loans they had identified for prior years, in or about March 2006, Accounting Firm B told DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW that DURHAM no longer had sufficient collateral and that the non-performing loans were under-collateralized by millions of dollars.

26. In or about August 2006, after DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW failed to convince Accounting Firm B that the loans were properly valued and sufficiently collateralized, DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW terminated Accounting Firm B and hired a third set of accountants ("Accounting Firm C"). DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW hired Accounting Firm C to perform a review but not an audit.

27. DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW never released audited financial statements for 2005, and never obtained or released audited financial statements for 2006, 2007, 2008, and through September 2009. Instead, DURHAM signed certifications stating that Fair's balance sheet, income statement, stockholders' equity, and cash flows were, to the best of his knowledge, information and belief, true and correct.

28. With independent accountants no longer auditing Fair, DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW concealed from investors that Fair's financial condition had substantially deteriorated due to the millions of dollars in non-performing loans that they had made with Fair investor money.

E. Concealing Fair's Financial Condition and Fair's Use of Investor Money

29. First, DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW made false and misleading representations about Fair's financial condition. Instead of reducing the value of the loans, as recommended by Fair's independent accountants, or writing the non-performing loans off altogether, DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW falsely represented, in registration documents and Offering Circulars submitted to the Division of Securities and in Offering Circulars distributed to investors, that the loans on Fair's books were assets that could support Fair's sale of investment certificates when they knew in reality that the loans were (a) worthless or grossly overvalued, (b) producing little or no cash proceeds, (c) supported by insufficient or non-existent collateral to assure repayment, and (d) in part advances, salaries, and lines of credit for DURHAM and COCHRAN's personal expenses.

30. Second, even though Accounting Firm B had required that DURHAM either pledge collateral to support the non-performing loans or write the non-performing loans down, after DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW fired Accounting Firm B, DURHAM sold most of the collateral he had pledged, rendering those non-performing loans largely unsecured. In addition, by using some of the proceeds from the sale of the collateral to support DURHAM and COCHRAN's struggling businesses, DURHAM was able to further conceal the true financial health of those businesses from the Division of Securities and investors.

31. Third, by continually amending the terms of loans, DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW concealed that DURHAM and COCHRAN and the businesses that they owned or controlled did not have the ability to make payments on their loans to Fair. When loans were about to mature or had already matured and the entities could not make payments to Fair, DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW amended the terms of the loans by increasing the amount that the entities could borrow from Fair and by extending the time that the entities had to pay Fair back.

32. Fourth, when the businesses that DURHAM and COCHRAN owned or controlled failed, DURHAM assumed those businesses' loans personally. DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW then represented in registration documents and Offering Circulars submitted to the Division of Securities and in Offering Circulars distributed to investors that the loans DURHAM had assumed were still assets available to Fair even though they knew that DURHAM was rarely making payments on his loans.

33. Fifth, DURHAM and COCHRAN caused Fair's sales representatives to make false and misleading representations to prospective investors and investors about Fair's business and its use of investor money. DURHAM and COCHRAN knew that: (a) they had changed Fair's primary business from purchasing finance receivables to making loans to DURHAM and COCHRAN, to their family, friends, and acquaintances, and to the businesses that they owned or controlled; and (b) after Fair's financial condition had deteriorated Fair was primarily using investor funds to pay other investors and not to purchase finance receivables. Nevertheless, they allowed Fair's sales representatives to continue falsely representing to prospective investors and investors that Fair used investor money only to purchase finance receivables.

F. Concealing Fair's Severe Cash Flow Crisis

34. When DURHAM and COCHRAN purchased Fair in 2002, Fair reported debts to investors from the sale of investment certificates of approximately $37 million and income-producing assets in the form of finance receivables of approximately $48 million. By November 2009, Fair's debts to investors from the sale of investment certificates had increased to approximately $200 million while Fair's potential income-producing assets consisted only of (a) the loans to DURHAM and COCHRAN, to their family, friends, and acquaintances, and to the businesses that they owned or controlled, which they claimed were worth approximately $240 million, and (b) finance receivables of approximately $24 million. Because the loans were producing little or no income for Fair, and because the income Fair had from its finance receivables portfolio could not alone support Fair's obligations to more than 5000 investors holding approximately $200 million worth of investment certificates, Fair did not have sufficient cash flow available to meet its obligations to investors.

35. DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW concealed from investors Fair's severe cash flow problems.

36. First, COCHRAN made false and misleading statements to concerned investors who either had not received principal or interest payments on their certificates from Fair or who were worried about Fair's financial health. COCHRAN contacted investors at DURHAM's direction and later discussed with DURHAM whether the false and misleading statements he had made quelled investor concerns. DURHAM also participated with COCHRAN in creating the false and misleading statements and discussed with COCHRAN additional false and misleading statements that they could give to the Division of Securities if investors reported irregularities at Fair.

37. Second, DURHAM requested daily reports on Fair's cash needs in order to limit payments to investors. When Fair did not have enough cash flow to meet its obligations to investors who were owed interest or principal payments on their certificates, DURHAM and COCHRAN directed Fair's employees not to pay investors the money that Fair owed to them.

38. During Fair's cash flow crisis, DURHAM and COCHRAN continued to funnel Fair investor money to themselves for their personal expenses, to their family, friends, and acquaintances, and to the struggling businesses that they owned or controlled, all while making continued misrepresentations and misleading statements about Fair's true financial condition and about how they were using investor money.

PURPOSE OF THE CONSPIRACY

41. The Grand Jury realleges and incorporates by reference Paragraph 17 of this Indictment as a description of the purpose of the conspiracy.

OVERT ACTS

In furtherance of the conspiracy and to achieve its objects and purposes, at least one of the conspirators committed and caused to be committed, in the Southern District of Indiana and elsewhere, at least one of the following overt acts, among others:

43. On or about December 30, 2006, DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW caused FHI to amend the terms of its loan made to Obsidian to increase Obsidian's borrowing capacity from FHI and to extend the date that Obsidian had to repay FHI.

44. On or about January 1, 2007, DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW caused FHI to amend the terms of its loan made to DCI to increase DCI's borrowing capacity from FHI and to extend the date that DCI had to repay FHI.

45. On or about January 8, 2007, DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW caused Fair to amend the terms of its loan made to FHI to increase FHI's borrowing capacity from Fair and to extend the date that FHI had to repay Fair.

46. On or about February 9, 2007, DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW caused FHI to amend the terms of its loan made to U.S. Rubber, an Obsidian subsidiary, to increase U.S. Rubber's borrowing capacity from FHI and to extend the date that U.S. Rubber had to repay FHI.

47. On or about February 13, 2007, DURHAM caused $250,000 of Fair's money to be wired to FHI so that DURHAM could use the funds to remodel his garage.

48. On or about January 28, 2008, DURHAM caused $150,000 of Fair's money to be wired to FHI so that DURHAM could use the funds at a casino.

49. On or about July 9, 2008, SNOW caused to be sent by electronic mail an Offering Circular for Fair containing false and misleading statements about its financial condition and the manner in which DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW were using investor money.

50. On or about July 28, 2008, DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW caused to be sent to the Division of Securities an Offering Circular for Fair containing false and misleading statements about its financial condition and the manner in which they were using investor money.

51. On or about November 10, 2008, DURHAM and COCHRAN caused $50,000 of Fair's money to be wired to FHI so that COCHRAN could use the funds to pay country club fees.

52. On or about January 16, 2009, DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW caused to be sent to the Division of Securities an Offering Circular for Fair containing false and misleading statements about its financial condition and the manner in which they were using investor money.

53. On or about September 11, 2009, DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW caused a Fair sales representative to make the following false and misleading statements to an undercover agent posing as an investor:

- (a) "Basically what we do is we do small business to business loans. So say if you went to, say to ten thousand, just a number. The minimum is two thousand. Um, so you give me a check for ten thousand . . . . In that two year time we would take your ten thousand dollars and we would go to like Craftmatic and we'd say hey look we have ten thousand dollars. We want to buy ten thousand dollars worth of the loans that you've issued. . . . So the ten thousand dollars we give them is up front so they don't have to wait the two years to collect on people that are buying a bed or a year and a half, however long the loans are. But that's basically what we do and then the loans that we do buy are small short term loans that aren't over three thousand dollars and don't go. . . I think the longest will go two years that we'll actually do a loan for."

(b) Fair "never missed an interest payment. We've never had any problems. Like I said, the loans that we do, uh, invest in are small term so people are more likely to pay a years worth of twenty dollars a month versus, you know, thirty years of six hundred dollars for a house."

(c) Fair has been "doing the same thing since 1934."

54. On or about October 29, 2009, DURHAM signed a certification stating that Fair's balance sheet, income statement, stockholders' equity, and cash flows for 2007 and 2008 were to the best of his knowledge, information, and belief, true and correct.

55. On or about October 30, 2009, DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW caused to be sent to the Division of Securities an Offering Circular for Fair containing false and misleading statements about Fair's financial condition and the manner in which they were using investor money.

56. On or about November 9, 2009, DURHAM and COCHRAN had a telephone conversation during which they discussed whether they could replace certain Fair employees while seeking reauthorization from the Division of Securities. COCHRAN stated that they needed to retain the employees regardless of their competence because "these guys know a little bit too much. They can take it and bust us." DURHAM agreed stating "No. We can't. We've got to get through this."

57. On or about November 12, 2009, DURHAM and COCHRAN had a telephone conversation during which COCHRAN discussed falsely telling investors that

DURHAM and COCHRAN had not used investor money for personal expenditures such as the purchase of houses and cars.

58. On or about November 12, 2009, DURHAM and COCHRAN had a telephone conversation during which they discussed an accounting strategy to make millions of dollars of "bad debt loans" that they would otherwise have to disclose to the Division of Securities "literally disappear."

59. On or about November 13, 2009, DURHAM and SNOW had a telephone conversation in which they planned to "wipe off" millions of dollars in bad debts so that they would not have to explain or justify the debts to the Division of Securities.

60. On or about November 17, 2009, DURHAM and COCHRAN had a telephone conversation during which they discussed how a substantial infusion of Fair investor money "buys us more time" to make interest and redemption payments to existing investors.

61. On or about November 18, 2009, DURHAM and COCHRAN had a telephone conversation during which they planned to give a false and misleading explanation to an investor about why the investor could not redeem an investment certificate.

62. On or about November 18, 2009, DURHAM and COCHRAN had a telephone conversation during which COCHRAN told DURHAM that the false and misleading explanation that COCHRAN had given to the investor appeared successful. DURHAM responded by telling COCHRAN "you are the best at this."

63. On or about November 19, 2009, DURHAM and COCHRAN had a telephone conversation during which they planned to give another false and misleading explanation to an investor about why the investor could not redeem an investment certificate. DURHAM advised COCHRAN to “use the same reason you used yesterday with the other guy” but cautioned COCHRAN not to “use that explanation too often because it’s not really true.”

64. On or about November 19, 2009, DURHAM and COCHRAN had a telephone conversation during which they discussed whether investors were going to call the Division of Securities to report payment irregularities at Fair and then discussed false and misleading explanations they could give to the Division of Securities if investors complained.

65. On or about November 24, 2009, DURHAM, COCHRAN, and SNOW caused to be sent to the Division of Securities an Offering Circular for Fair containing false and misleading statements about its financial condition and the manner in which they were using investor money.

All in violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 371.
