PROGRAMS

Wilderness Adventures: A wilderness adventure begins with two to 12 pre-trip training classes. After completing the class time, Camptown Wilderness Guides lead a trip into nature. This can range from a day hike to a full week in the wilderness. Activities include backpacking, canoeing, hiking, caving or climbing.

Natural Wonders Day Camp: Designed to get younger students out of the city and into nature. Held primarily at Fort Benjamin Harrison State Park, Natural Wonders Day Camp consists of a variety of outdoor activity stations, allowing the students to explore outdoor recreation in a safe environment. Activities may include fishing, fire building, canoeing, geocaching.

How Wild is Your School? A fun, energetic, thought-provoking way to teach students about the world around them. Camptown staff go into the schools and, working with the classroom teacher, bring outdoor education to the everyday through a hands-on learning experience that not only teaches students about nature, but helps to develop a love for the environment. These programs are tied to the state education standards for third through eighth grade.
